COMPTON COLLEGE COMPLETION BY DESIGN

Completion by Design

The final report on the Gates-funded initiative states:

In 2011, nine colleges joined the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation on a student success initiative called Completion by Design (CBD). They all shared the premise that addressing the problem of completion requires a long-term, large-scale approach. These colleges recognized they could have a significant positive impact on student success rates if they were willing to redesign their entire institutions around degree completion. Six years later, the student experience at these colleges looks markedly different. (p.3)
